Over 100 turn up to throw cellphones for a cause

KATMANDU: A group of people came together to throw their old cellphones into a Saturday afternoon. Sounds unusual, yet that's what happened on March 3 at the Yashwantrao.

A total of 107 people — 110 men (including one 12-year-old boy) and 11 women — gathered at the venue to participate in the 'Old Mobile Throwing Competition'. The participants had to submit their old mobile phones to the organizers and pay a registration fee to take part in the competition.

In exchange for their old cellphones, the participants were given dummy mobile phones (each weighing 100 grams), which they used to throw in the competition. And the one with longest throw was announced the winner in male and female categories. The competition in Under-18 category could not take place as there were only one participant.

94.1 metres, became the winner in the male category, while the winner of female category was Pooja Subedi with a throw of 28.6 metres. While it seemed to be a fun event for the spectators, the competition was organized for a cause. Interviewing about the competition, Vice President of the Rotaract Club of Bhaktapur and Coordinator of the programme Neerajendra Arya said, "It is a charity competition. We wanted to give mobile phones to the women of slum districts. Hence, we chose this competition — the money collected from the competition will be used to buy new sets of cellphones that will be distributed to those women."

The winners of the competition were handed over Color Pad 950 mobile phone set each.

The 12-year-old winner Subedi was excited to be a part of the event. "I got to know about the competition via Lions Club of which I'm a member. At first I thought it was an unusual competition. When I got to know that I had to throw a dummy mobile phone set and the money I'd pay would go for charity, I liked the idea." Thus, she participated, chose the phone for a cause, and won.

And 12-year-old Dipan Koirala, who was there with his father, could not compete yet got an opportunity to throw the cell phone. "First, I practiced for a few times by throwing mobile phone-shaped wooden structures. When I was confident enough, I threw the dummy phone. And I liked it — I threw 14 metres," the Class-V student shared his experience.

The competition, though a new concept in Nepal, started from Finland and is pretty popular in European countries, in particular...
